Adjunct Faculty Position: Derivatives Market Regulation Seminar

New York Law School (NYLS), located in the heart of Tribeca, seeks adjunct faculty to teach Derivative Market Regulations.

Course Description

This course provides the student with an introduction to the law governing the derivatives markets. The primary focus is on the regulated futures and options on futures markets, but consideration is given to the over-the-counter market in derivatives, including the swap and forward markets. Topics include the mechanics of trading in the futures and other derivatives markets; the use of the derivatives markets for hedging, speculation, and price discovery; the organization and regulation of contract markets and their members; and the regulation of futures commission merchants, commodity trading advisors, and commodity pool operators.

This is a 2-credit course, requiring an estimated nine hours per week.

Requirements

J.D. and a minimum of seven years of related experience in the Financial Services Industry

Salary

Highly competitive

How to Apply

Submit a cover letter summarizing your qualifications and interest in this position, along with your resume or CV, to teaching@nyls.edu. Please indicate “Derivative Market Regulations” in the subject line.

About New York Law School

Founded in 1891, New York Law School (NYLS) is an independent law school located in Tribeca, the heart of New York City’s legal, government, financial, and emerging tech centers. Known as “New York’s law school,” NYLS embraces the city as its classroom by complementing a rigorous legal education with an innovative and diverse set of “uniquely New York” experiential learning opportunities. Since opening its doors, NYLS has produced graduates who have gone on to hold high elected and appointed office in the city, lead large and small firms, and gain broad recognition as captains of business and industry. Its renowned faculty of prolific scholars has built the School’s strength in key areas of the law, including business and financial services, intellectual property and privacy, and government and public interest law. NYLS has more than 18,000 graduates and currently enrolls around 1,100 students in its full-time and part-time J.D. programs. The School also offers an advanced-degree program in Tax Law.
