E-Discovery and Ethics
Leslie A. Fields and Katie M. Gray 19
E-discovery has become a key aspect of all forms of litigation and, as a result, presents a variety of pitfalls and challenges to the unwary lawyer. All litigators must appreciate their responsibilities regarding the search, preservation, production and receipt of electronically stored information. This article by Leslie A. Fields and Katie M. Gray will identify some of the ethical traps that can result in serious consequences for attorneys and their clients, provide a background of modern e-discovery, define the important key terms in e-discovery, list the important rules that govern e-discovery, and discuss several important cases in the e-discovery area.

FINRA Regulation of Private Offerings
Hugh H. Makens 27
FINRA has been ill-equipped to comprehend both the general market for these securities and the numerous variations and shapes that private offerings take. Nevertheless, it still has considerable power and compliance with its rules is crucial is essential to the operation of its member brokerage firms and exchange markets. In this article, Hugh H. Makens discusses the FINRA rules applicable to suitability, due diligence, dealing with non-members, private placements, escrows, confirmations, broker-check, crowdfunding, and “garbage collecting.”

U.S. Immigration and Citizenship Planning for High Net Worth Clients
Steve Trow 39
U.S. immigration planning for high net worth clients is challenging because immigration lawyers and tax advisors often have different perspectives. The first section of this article by Steve Trow provides guidance on U.S. immigration planning for high net worth clients and describes the most commonly-used nonimmigrant (temporary) visa options for clients who wish to visit, work, or invest in the United States. It also provides a brief summary of the employment and investment-based options for obtaining permanent resident (green card) status in the U.S. The second section of this article covers three aspects of American citizenship: (i) obtaining American citizenship through naturalization; (ii) spotting “Accidental” American citizenship when the client does not know he has it; and (iii) terminating American citizenship when the client has it but does not want it.

Stop Solitary Confinement of Children .................. 3
by Hon. Michael A. Corriero

The United Nations Rapporteur on torture has concluded that placing a prisoner in solitary confinement for more than fifteen days constitutes torture. Judge Corriero argues eloquently to end isolation of minors for any length of time.

Will There Be Any Process Servers
Left in New York City? ......................... 9
by Irving Botwinick

A master of the art of process serving, the author reflects on the impact of New York City regulations governing process servers, which increases their burdens.

The Unconstitutionality of Electing State Judges ......... 15
by Monroe H. Freedman, Esq.

In Republican Party v. White, 536 U.S. 765 (2002), the U.S. Supreme Court justices noted their concern that requiring judges to stand for elections could provide both contributors and detractors to the judge’s re-election with undue influence over the judge’s decision-making on cases, resulting in due process violations. With billions of dollars now being poured into political campaigns, those concerns become even more pressing. Professor Freedman addresses the issue of whether state judicial elections are unconstitutional in this context.

Let’s Hear It For S. 2471 ......................... 25
by Wayne M. Greenwald, Esq.

Greenwald, a bankruptcy law expert, considers the unfair burden current bankruptcy law places on “medical debtors,” who face catastrophic or unexpected medical expenses. He discusses a new bill, S. 2471, recently introduced by U.S. Senators Warren and Whitehouse to address this problem.

End the Perp Walk ......................... 29
by Thomas F. Liotti, Esq.

Prosecutors have a duty not to prejudice the trier of fact in criminal cases. Yet, police parade arrestees before the cameras in handcuffs in what is known as “the prep walk,” as if they were already convicted. Mr. Liotti argues this practice serves only to prejudice any potential juror and is unconstitutional.
